BTW...I am requesting a stand-alone meeting with our Plan partners and the BDCP folks but I would like your assistance in responding the assertion that EPA and Corps don't care about the potential conflict with the BDCP....good grief...

Stacey –

I talked to David Zippin, the program director. He doesn't think EPA or Corps would care about overlap issue, as they are most interested in wetland protection and restoration, which will happen mostly outside the area of overlap. The potential conflict with BDCP and South Sac surrounds protection of cultivated lands, which EPA and Corps don't care about.

We think we can have better discussions if we keep the meeting fairly small, however, if you feel you need them there, you certainly may invite them.
